NAZIS ANGERED BY STABBING OF PARTY MEMBER

Sudeten German Killed by Austrian Refugee in Czechoslovakia

INCIDENT TERMED MAJOR

Berlin Newspapers Call Fatality 'Czech Murder' In Headlines

BERLIN, Aug. 9.—(UP)—Nazi party quarters today viewed the fatal stabbing of a Sudeten German party member at Hartmanitz, Czechoslovakia, as a major incident in the German-Czech crisis.

The fact that the alleged assailant was an Austrian refugee was only of "secondary importance," according to information made available to the foreign press by semi-official quarters.

"Political quarters in Berlin are depressed by the new murder of a Sudeten German because this crime is looked on as significant of the jeopardy of life to which Germans are exposed in Czechoslovakia under the Prague regime," the statement said.

"It is considered only of secondary importance what faction the murderer in this particular case belonged to, as all anti-German factions equally are given an opportunity to fight against Germanism and with every criminal means.

"It is considered most pertinent that such criminal means can be applied continuously without Prague effectively intervening to protect Sudeten Germans.

Incident Charged

"The leniency with which crimes against Sudetens heretofore have been treated, the unscrupulous manner with which the Czech as well as the Marxian press is permitted to indulge their campaign for annihilation of Sudeten Germanism, and the fact that in several cases Czech officials were involved in misdeeds against Germans—also in the latest case a Czech official was present—according to the opinion of Berlin must actually be incitement to the enemies of Germanism in Czechoslovakia."

Newspapers intensified a campaign of criticism of Czechoslovakia as a result of the new incident. Headlines called it a "Czech Murder."

"The cowardly murder of the Sudeten German flashed like a beacon light amidst a long series of Czech crimes against the Sudeten German population," said the Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung. "The German people today and for all the future will no longer look passively on, or tolerate the Germans, merely because they belong to the German race, be persecuted or hunted and attacked by frenzied mobs," said the Boersen-Zeitung.

CORN MARKET QUOTA STUDIED

A. A. A. Officials Await Crop Board Forecast Before Acting

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9.—(UP)—Agriculture adjustment administration officials prepared today for a poll of corn growers on establishment of marketing quotas.

The Department of Agriculture general crop report tomorrow will determine whether a referendum on corn marketing quotas becomes mandatory under the new farm program. The farm program makes a referendum of corn belt farmers on establishment of marketing quotas mandatory if the Aug. 1 crop board forecast indicates "excessive" supplies, as defined by the act. Excessive supplies of corn were defined as 17.6 percent more than the quantity needed to meet a normal year's domestic consumption and export requirements.

Officials said a supply of between 2,800,000,000 and 2,850,000,000 would be excessive. The department estimated that the carry-over of old crop corn on Oct. 1 will be between 375,000,000 and 400,000,000 bushels. Thus, an Aug. 1 crop board estimate of 1938 crop of 2,450,000,000 bushels or more probably would make a marketing referendum necessary.

On July 1 the department estimated the corn crop at 2,482,102,000 bushels. Private forecasts since Aug. 1 have placed the crop in excess of 2,500,000,000 bushels, due to better than normal July weather over most of the corn belt.

So overwhelming were the indications of a quota referendum that Agricultural Adjustment Administration officials said tentative plans for voting already have been made. If a referendum is to be held it must be announced before Aug. 15 and held within 20 days thereafter.

GASOLINE CATCHES FIRE, BURNS RICHARD MOON, 17

Richard Moon, 17, of 475 E. Main street, was treated about 11:30 a. m. Tuesday for burns on the arms and face that he received when he ignited gasoline in a barrel at the county garage to burn out some tar. "I was just standing too close and it puffed on me," the youth said.

He was working at the garage for his grandfather, Charles Miller, who was employed by the election board. The burns are not believed serious.

Election Becomes Secondary As Ohioans Continue to Suffer from Heat Wave; Pools, Picnics Offer Little Relief

Tuesday was primary election day, and hundreds of Pickaway countians and thousands of Ohio residents were casting their ballots, but news of the election remained secondary to the weather with Old Sol continuing to cause much suffering and displeasure in Central Ohio. Few can remember when the temperature any given day was below the 90-degree reading. And what's more no permanent relief is included in the government forecast.

With the weather remaining so torrid sufferers from the heat have been trying — unsuccessfully in a large degree — to find ways in which to combat the humidity. Few can

CROWD WATCHES TWO SWIMMERS DROWN IN RIVER

COLUMBUS, Aug. 9.—(UP)—Hundreds watched from the shores as two men drowned at the foot of a dam in the Scioto river here last night as they lost a battle against the swift back current.

The victims were Clifford Longshore, 31, and Edwin H. Matheson, 25. They had been swimming near the dam and were believed to have been drawn into the dangerous current when they came too close. One held to a log five minutes and the other for 30 minutes before they were drawn under. They were battered again and again against the foot of the dam.

Two policemen tried to reach them with a rescue boat but could make no headway against the strong current.

BUDGET OF CITY FOR 1939 ABOUT SAME AS 1938

City council will consider its budget for 1939 at the regular meeting Aug. 17, the budget, prepared by Miss Lillian Young, city auditor, and to be submitted to the finance committee for approval includes $77,092.48 in the general fund, $15,236.53 for bonds.

Miss Young said the budget for 1938 included $75,880.40 in the general fund and $16,412.79 for bonds. "Our estimates were too high on the disposal plant bonds," Miss Young said in explaining the bond reduction for 1939.

The 1939 budget is practically the same as the one prepared for 1938. About $2,300 additional was needed to take care of the restoration of the 10 per cent salary reductions to police and firemen and the employment of another patrolman.

Commissioners held a public hearing on the county budget for 1939, Monday. No objections were voiced.

to combat the humidity. Few can be ice deliverers, but many have been driving into the country, seeking swimming pools and other places where the heat may be forgotten, at least for a while. But swimming pools are not secluded from the sun's rays and who wants a blistered back, shoulders or arms. Picnics in the rural districts are accompanied by their discomforts and who wants to fight flies, or take a chance on a snake coming along just as the food has been spread, or of finding a nasty old bull trying to keep all from his domain? It looks very much as though the weather is going to have its own way. Those who cannot enjoy life because of the heat are just going to have to take it and like it—or will they?

The most discomfort, as far as many are concerned, is the inability to get sufficient rest at night. Many early risers have seen neighbors scurrying indoors after spending the night on the porch or in the backyard. Others move their beds as near to windows as possible, hoping that any feeble breeze that might be blown up during the night would find its way into the bedroom.

There is nothing like a fruit drink to make one feel cool when the old thermometer does a dizzy climb. And best and healthiest of all the fruit juices mixed into an ade, a punch or julep, are the citrus fruits. Their slight tartness give an extra refreshing edge, while the juices themselves lower body temperatures.

COUNTY JAIL TO HOUSE GOVERNMENT PRISONERS

Commissioners approved a contract Monday between Sheriff Charles Radcliff and the government for the care of federal prisoners at the county jail.

The contract, to run for three years, was on the basis of 75 cents a day. All funds are received by the county.

Sheriff Radcliff said a former contract with the government expired several years ago. Under that contract the price was 60 cents a day.

MUCH INTEREST SHOWN IN EARLY CHECK OF POLLS

Governor's Contest Gets Much Attention From Citizens

CONGRESS RACE WATCHED

First Returns Expected to Be Reported About 9 by Election Board

A near-record vote despite the lack of many county contests was expected in Tuesday's primary with the Davey-Sawyer fight for the Democratic nomination for governor as the chief interest.

Voting in city precincts was reported heavy up to noon. Democratic ballots were far in excess of Republican. There are no county contests on the Republican ticket. Democrats have two contests to settle in the county, one in the commissioner race, the other for representative to the general assembly.

Next to the governor contest, the most interest seemed centered on the congressional fight with three Democratic and two Republican candidates seeking nomination. Harold K. Claypool, Chillicothe, seeks reelection on the Democratic ticket with opposition from Dr. J. M. Lantz, Lancaster, and Robert L. Immell, Yellowbud. Tom White, Fairfield county, and Creed Silbaugh, Chillicothe, seek the Republican nomination.

Clark K. Hunsicker, Democrat, seeks reelection to the general assembly with opposition from William L. Spangler, Tarlton. William Radcliff, Williamsport, is the Republican candidate without opposition.

The other Democratic race in the county is for commissioner with W. M. Beavers, Scioto township, Wayne Brown, Madison township; George T. Eitel, Circleville township, and Earl L. Hoffman, Washington township, as candidates. C. E. Wright, Republican, is opposed for reelection.

Another race interesting to Pickaway countians is the contest between Mrs. Olivia Talbot Hays, N. Court street, seeking the position as member of the state central committee on the Democratic ticket with opposition from Miss Josephine Justus, Lancaster. The board of elections believes the first returns will be received about 9 p. m. It hoped to have an unofficial tabulation completed between 3:30 and 4 a. m. Wednesday if all workers cooperated in sending precinct returns to the board as rapidly as possible.

A tabulation board will be operated on the front of the courthouse. In the event of rain it will be placed inside the building.

Persons are requested by the board of elections not to seek information at the office. Returns will be posted on the board as rapidly as they are received.

BLUECHER TAKES CHARGE OF RED SIBERIAN FORCE

TOKYO, Aug. 9.—(UP)—A Domei news agency dispatch from the Siberian frontier reported today that Field Marshal Vassily Bluecher, commander in chief of the Russian Far Eastern army, had arrived to supervise Russian army operations.

The dispatch asserted that Bluecher had arrived at Novokievsk, near the frontier and opposite Possiet bay where Russian warships have been reported concentrated.

According to the dispatch Russian troops were withdrawing from advanced positions but fresh Russian troops were expected. Presumably it meant that the Russians who had been holding front positions were being relieved.

JUSTICE HALTS EARLE INQUIRY

Writ Granted Preventing Grand Jury Probe Of Graft

HARRISBURG, Pa., Aug. 9.—(UP)—Chief Justice John W. Kephart of the state supreme court issued a writ today staying the grand jury investigation of alleged graft in Gov. George H. Earle's administration "at least until September."

Justice Kephart granted the stay on request of attorney general Guy K. Bard and the special legislative committee that is trying to take over the inquiry.

The county judge assigned to preside over the grand jury investigation, Judge Paul N. Schaeffer, held yesterday that new laws designed to block the grand jury and put the inquiry into the hands of the legislature were unconstitutional. Appeals from Schaeffer's rulings were filed with Kephart today.

BIRD GANGSTER AND WIFE HELD IN BALTIMORE, MD.

BALTIMORE, Md., Aug. 9.—A man who identified himself as Charles Bird, a member of the Bird gang which escaped from the Cleveland county jail last September, was held today in connection with 12 robberies.

Arrested and held with him as an accomplice was a woman whom he identified as his wife, Barbara. Police said they would be charged jointly with the series of robberies that have been committed here since June.

The couple was arrested last night after detectives had set a trap a week ago. At first, police said, the man claimed that his name was William Neil. After a piece of adhesive tape had been torn from his arm revealing his initials "C. B." in tattoo, he admitted to Capt. John A. Cooney that his real name was Charles Bird.

Charles Bird was described by the Federal Bureau of investigation in 1936 as "Public Enemy No. 2."

When the couple's expensive sedan was surrounded by detectives last night in front of a house that had been watched for days, police quoted Bird as saying to his companion:

"What's the use, Babe. It looks like it's all over."

The woman is an attractive blonde. She gave her name as Genevieve Roth of Newark, N. J., but Bird identified her as Barbara Seibert Bird, his wife.

BARKLEY'S FOE FOR SENATE JOB KIN OF HASWELLS

The Kentucky senatorial election took on a new interest for Circleville residents, Tuesday when it was learned that John B. Haswell, who has been nominated by Republicans of the state for the U. S. Senate, is a cousin of James and Miss Edith Haswell of this city. Their fathers were brothers.

The nominee is a son of the late James P. Haswell. He was born and reared in Hardinsburg, Ky. He served two terms in the Kentucky legislature. Mr. Haswell is a Louisville attorney.

Alben W. Barkley won the Democratic nomination by more than 50,000 votes from Governor A. B. Chandler in a bitter contest. Barkley was backed by the President.

Although the Republicans nominated Mr. Haswell, his chances of election are considered very poor. Only a handful of Republicans cast ballots in the primary compared with the Democratic turnout.

GOVERNOR'S USE OF NAME DRAWS SOLON TO FIGHT

Senator Issues Statement Declaring That He Voted For Cincinnati

Kennedy Sends Observers Into Some Parts of State To Witness Primary

COLUMBUS, Aug. 9.—(UP)—U. S. Senator Vic Donahey, only man to hold the office of Ohio governor for three consecutive terms, literally had the "last word" before Ohio voters went to the polls in the primary election today.

The electorate was to nominate candidates for governor, United States senator, house of representatives, and minor offices.

Sen. Donahey's last moment pronouncement was an unqualified endorsement for Charles Sawyer of Cincinnati, opponent of Gov. Martin L. Davey for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination. It came from Knoxville, Tenn., where Sen. Donahey is serving as chairman of the congressional committee investigating the Tennessee Valley Authority.

Efforts to have Sen. Donahey endorse Sawyer began quietly 10 days ago. Friends of Sawyer, Democratic national committee man for Ohio, contacted "Honest Vic" repeatedly but he would not commit himself on the contest for governor, one of the state's warmest political races in years.

Followed Cox Attack

Sen. Donahey apparently changed his mind last night after Gov. Davey mentioned his name in his final campaign speech. The governor referred to former Governor James M. Cox, Dayton publisher who had endorsed Sawyer earlier, as a "sour and bitter old man." The governor added that Cox had been "jealous and vindictive toward Donahey."

Shortly afterward, Donahey issued the following statement. "Since Martin L. Davey has seen fit to inject my name into the Ohio Democratic primary controversy over the governorship, it now becomes incumbent on me to let him and the world know that I have already cast my vote for Charles Sawyer by absent voter's ballot. I hope that Mr. Sawyer will be nominated."

"In the past I have taken no part in primary elections except when I have been a candidate, believing that Ohio Democrats are capable of nominating a ticket without the help of the higher-ups in the party."

There was no contest for the Republican nomination for governor. John W. Bricker, the party's 1936 nominee, was unopposed.

Bulkley vs. White

U. S. Senator Robert J. Bulkley, loyal to the New Deal and favored by President Roosevelt, faced the first hurdle in his race for reelection for a second term. He was opposed in today's primary by George White of Marietta, two-term former governor.

More exciting because of lively campaigning of the two candidates was the contest for the Republican senatorial nomination, where in Robert A. Taft of Cincinnati, son of the late President and chief justice, was opposed by Judge Arthur H. Day of the Ohio supreme court. Theirs has been in many ways the most interesting battle of the pre-primary campaign.

Secretary of State William J. Kennedy ordered official witnesses into many of the state's 8601 precincts to insure an accurate count of the ballots. Disabled voters' ballots were expected to be challenged in some instances.

OHIO FARMERS BOOST ACREAGE FOR SOYBEANS

Cultivation Doubled by State in Four Years,
O. S. U. Expert Says

OATS DECLINE CITED
Circleville Plant Listed
As One of Leading
Mills in State

COLUMBUS, Aug. 8—Ohio farmers have doubled the acreage devoted to soybean cultivation in the last four years, from 23,000 acres in 1934 to 418,000 acres in 1938.

Behind these figures disclosed by the U. S. department of agriculture lies the story of another shift in the ever-changing panorama of Ohio.

And, contrary to a general public belief, the rapid expansion in soybean cultivation owes practically none of its success to the much-publicized use of soybeans for new purposes, especially in the automobile industry.

Professor J. I. Falconer, chief of the bureau of rural economics at Ohio State university, exploded the above assumption. He credits the rise of the soybean to the concurrent decline of oats as a profitable farm crop.

"Despite all the publicity, considerably less than 10 percent of the soybean production is consumed by industry," Dr. Falconer declared. "Soybeans in Ohio make a convenient hay crop and valuable feed for farm livestock."

10 Percent Above 1937
Ohio boosted its soybean acreage for 1938 by 10 percent over 1937. While no estimates are ready on the 1938 production from 418,000 acres, last year's yield totaled 3,249,000 bushels, an average of 19 bushels per acre. The current price is about 80 cents per bushel.

Soybeans, which resemble the ordinary garden lima variety in appearance, are grown principally in Clermont, Union, Delaware, Van Wert, Franklin, Marion, Licking, Madison, Hardin, Allen, Paulding, Scioto, Ashtabula, Clinton, Wyandot, Morrow, Auglaize and Warren counties.

Exactly one-half of the 1937 soybean acreage in Ohio was cut for hay. Most of the remaining crop was harvested for the beans themselves which are crushed into meal and oil. Leading Ohio mills are located at Circleville, Marion and Toledo, according to Dr. Falconer.

Soybeans owe most of their current popularity, Dr. Falconer believes, to two factors. Their convenience as a hay crop and the low prices paid for oats in recent years.

June Planting Approved
Bean seed may be planted as late as June in case unfavorable spring weather has flooded out other crops. Later, soybeans are ready for haying in August. Dr. Falconer said this time is convenient for most farmers because other hay crops must be cut earlier in the midst of corn cultivation.

Contrary to a second popular assumption, soybeans are not valuable as "soil builders," Dr. Falconer added. Tests by soil chemists show the beans are "neutral," adding to and depleting the ground in about equal parts.

For the future, Dr. Falconer expects soybean acreage to continue expansion. He pointed out that the current 413,000 acres was negligible if one considers that Ohio has 2,000,000 acres of wheat and 3,000,000 acres devoted to hay crops of all kinds.

F. D. R. JOVIAL AS VACATION AT SEA NEARS END

ABOARD U. S. S. HOUSTON, Aug. 9—(By naval radio to the United Press)—President Roosevelt was in a jocular mood today as he neared the end of a 5,888 mile fishing cruise.

He took time out from his speechwriting to compliment Captain George N. Barger and members of the Houston's crew for their conduct on the cruise.

"I want to take this opportunity to thank the officers and crew of the Houston for a very wonderful trip," the President said.

"This is the third trip I have taken on the Houston in the last four years. Every moment of the trip has been delightful. I feel the Houston is home."

"I am very happy this is an efficient ship, not only in a military sense, but because it is a happy ship. I am suggesting to Capt. Barker that when he joins the fleet he put an "F" on one stack and an "E" on the other stack — meaning "fishing efficiency."

Capt. Barker replied it had been a great pleasure to have the President aboard and an honor to fly his flag. He said he expected the Houston to dock at Pensacola at 3 p. m.

TWO SOCIALITES DIE AS FLAMES DESTROY HOME

TUXEDO PARK, N. Y., Aug. 9—(UP)—William T. Ade and his wife, prominent in Eastern society, were burned to death early today when flames enveloped their remodeled farm house in this fashionable colony.

A nursemaid escaped by leaping from a second story window carrying their one year old son. She broke her hand, but the child was unharmed.

Ray Hunter, 38, one of the first persons on the scene, said the fire apparently started in the wing of the building where the Adees were sleeping. He said Mrs. Ade was at a window when he and Anthony Less, 40, arrived in advance of fire departments from nearby communities.

"She was screaming," Hunter said, "but we had no way of getting to her. Before the fire trucks arrived she collapsed at the window."

Ade was not seen. It was believed he was trapped while trying to make his way to the bedroom of his son in another wing.

The nursemaid was Sara Henion, 19. Firemen carried her and the baby away from the burning structure.

Guided by Hunter, firemen located Mrs. Ade's body as soon as the fire was extinguished. They continued the search for Ade's body. The Adees, the nurse and the child were the only occupants of the large house.

ROUSH MUST DIE FOR MURDER OF LANDLORD, WIFE

MARION, Aug. 9—(UP)—Harvey L. Roush, 48, farm tenant, today faced a sentence of death in the electric chair for the slaying of his landlord, Homer T. Myers, 65, and Mrs. Myers.

A jury of five women and seven men deliberated three hours before returning a verdict of guilty at 5 p. m. Monday. The jury did not recommend mercy.

Roush showed little emotion when he heard the verdict. Mrs. Roush also was calm. The trial lasted six days.

At the request of defense attorneys, Judge Hector S. Young charged the jury that it was its duty to decide whether Roush was sane at the time of the slaying on April 30. The defense had claimed insanity in the Roush family.

Roush had testified that he remembered nothing of the killing. The prosecution claimed he had made a full confession.

CHINESE CLAIM JAPS BEATEN IN HANKOW DISTRICT

SHANGHAI, Aug. 9—(UP)—Chinese armies attacked Hwangmei and Taihu on the Hankow front today and claimed to have destroyed many Japanese warships attempting to push up the Yangtse river toward the provisional capital.

Chinese press dispatches said both towns, about 25 miles North of the river, above Kiukiang, had been isolated. They predicted they would fall to the Chinese soon.

The Chinese claimed another victory at Lion hill, on the North bank of the river outside of Kiukiang. The Japanese were driven back and the Chinese once more were established in well-fortified entrenchments on the crest, according to the dispatches. It was at Lion hill that China's "God of war" battalion held back the Japanese for several days before they occupied Kiukiang.

COUNTY TO HALT DUPLICATION OF RELIEF SERVICE

County commissioners, in compliance with new state relief laws, designated the county relief headquarters Monday as the clearing house for all forms of relief including federal, state, county, township, and municipal agencies.

D. H. Marcy, relief director, said the purpose of establishing a clearing house is so a check may be kept to prevent duplication of aid. Reports will be submitted regularly to the county clearing house by the various agencies dispensing aid.

Mr. Marcy announced Tuesday that a recent investigation had revealed a Pickaway county relief client had sold groceries he obtained on a relief order for cash. He was immediately removed from relief rolls. Marcy said persons who sell orders will be prosecuted.

COLAN INFANT TAKEN EAST IN MOVE TO SAVE EYE

CHICAGO, Aug. 9—(UP)—Helaine Judith Colan, suffering a cancerous growth threatening loss of her sight and possibly her life, was flown to New York last night for consultation with "a famous specialist" to determine possibility of saving her remaining right eye, her father said today.

Dr. Herman Colan, dentist, said his wife and her mother, Mrs. Morris Hersman, flew to New York for a series of three appointments with the specialist.

The consultation was recommended, Dr. Colan said, by a group of Chicago physicians who have treated the child since the malignant growth covering both her eyes was discovered last May when Helaine was six weeks old.

But it's too early yet, let them grow. Ben Morrison says he is quite sure he has a very large tomato and we'll see about that tomorrow. We'll do the measuring ourselves.

Ben Vause said yesterday that he was intending to sow more wheat with what we call the "New-fangled" wheat drill this coming seeding season which will begin with October 1, free fly day. Said this year's wheat yield with the wide rows and deep furrows was at least equal to the other with much less cost in seed and fertilizer.

Yesterday, Seymour and Mrs. Smith were married an even fifty years, and at their home in North-east Harrison township they received a number of callers who came to congratulate them on their having lived to reach their fiftieth year of married life. And The Court of which "SI" is a

Commerce Aide Looks For Major Improvement

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9—(UP)—Assistant Secretary of Commerce Richard C. Patterson, Jr., seeing improvement in business conditions predicted today that recovery would be accelerated this Fall.

In an interview with the United Press, he warned against price increases as business activity expands, advising business and industry instead to concentrate on increased sales volume.

"It is apparent from our reports from all parts of the country," he said, "that the federal government's spending program has already had a good psychological effect on business.

"Businessmen are coming out of their shells and are beginning to look to future business. They're getting away from the day-to-day outlook."

To Feel Expenditures

Government spending to date he said, could have had little more than a psychological effect on business. But, he added, its direct effects should begin to be felt in the Fall when spending will be at a peak.

"I look for an acceleration in the rate of recovery during the Fall," he continues. "It would seem then, that employment will increase."

Reports from various business and industrial enterprises, he said, indicate that the level of orders is above that of current production. These reports, which are confidential, reveal that, because of the excess of orders over production, industrial concerns are drawing on their gradually diminishing inventories to meet demand. The reports also indicate that the level of consumption continues to remain above the level of production.

"One of the most interesting aspects of this latest so-called economic recession," Patterson said, "was the maintenance of consumption at high levels. This factor is largely responsible for the rapid scaling down of the heavy accumulation of inventories during the first six months of the year."

Improvement Continues

The marked improvement in both retail and wholesale trades during June and July, which were indicated in commerce department surveys, appeared to have continued into August.

Echoing Patterson's optimism, the commerce department's weekly business survey of 35 key cities said:

"Both retail and wholesale trade resumed their moderate upswing in most sections of the country during the week ending Aug. 3. A marked increase in building prospects over a year ago, and scattered reports of increased industrial activity strengthened the encouraging business undertone."

Olivia DeHavilland

Olivia De Havilland, screen lovely; Lou Holtz, comedian; and Jose Iturbi, concert pianist are the guests lined up by Robin Burns for the Music Hall Thursday. In addition to Burns, Summer keeper of the Hall, the regular company for the broadcast over the NBC red network includes the Foursome, novelty octet quartet and John Scott Trotter and his orchestra.

Probably the most promising budding star in Hollywood is Miss De Havilland yet she has never been known to sing a song in public. Rumor has it that the Sage of Van Buren will try to remedy all this by talking Olivia into "airing her pipes" for the benefit of the clients of K. M. H.

Lou Holtz, inventor of the comic character, Sam Lapidus, will stick to dialect comedy for his laughs. Lou had a little bad luck when he attempted to depart from the style of laughing that first brought him fame but he recently hit his stride again on the Valley Hour.

The famous conductor and pianist, Jose Iturbi is one of the most loyal of the K. M. H. alumni. Whenever he hits California in his many jaunts about the country, he invariably turns up on the Music Hall roster for a chance to let down his hair in between numbers.

Latest recordings by Russ Morgan's orchestra, featured on the "Johnny Presents" program include "There's a Brand New Picture in My Frame," "So Help Me," "Small Fry," "Laugh and Call it

Love," "I've Got a Pocketful of Dreams" and "Don't Let That Moon Get Away."

Ben Bernie, the old maestro now playing at the Beverly Hills Country Club in Covington, Ky., broke the attendance record at Eastwood Gardens in Detroit, when he played there last week.

Colonel Stoopnagle will burlesque "Hobby Lobby" on his "Town Hall" program over the NBC-Red network Aug. 10.

Wherever Edgar Bergen decides to spend his vacation late this month he won't escape the Sunday night radio stint. NBC mikeramen will follow and pipe him into the show.

Rube Wolf, west coast maestro, has a sample platter of a half-hour show employing his band and several specialty acts on its way east for playback to interested sponsors.

Harry Sosnick waved the baton during the audition of the fall Joe E. Brown show over CBS in Hollywood this week, which indicates he may get the regular job.

"Hollywood Hotel" returns to the air Sept. 9.

Margaret Shanna will vacation from her "Arnold Grimm's Daughter" program in mid-August and will spend her time off in her home town, Council Bluffs, Iowa.

Spencer Bentley, who is "Bob" of "Betty and Bob," has been assigned the role of Douglas, a motion picture director, in "The Romance of Helen Trent."

Although Bing Crosby has turned the "Music Hall" over to Bob Burns, he will still be heard on the air when he participates in a special broadcast over the NBC-Blue network Aug. 12 during the description of the race between his horse Ligaroti, and the famed

MAGIC FORMULA

THE great problem of Europe is obviously one of minorities. In Central Europe, the happy-hunting ground of ambitious meddlers, a lot of little racial political groups are all jammed up together. And even within those small states are rival groups jammed up likewise, resenting their close proximity, hating their neighbors, apparently incapable of cooperation.

The United States has solved the problem. We have all those European nationalities and races over here, and often jammed tightly in spite of our roomy country, in special areas and in cities. And they do get along together.

How do we work it? Very simply. We try to treat 'em all alike. We let 'em talk, we let 'em parade and we let 'em vote. We let 'em have their own languages and newspapers, as long as they learn our language, too. We give 'em all the same kind of education and then turn 'em loose. And they fuse miraculously. Soon they're all Americans. Well, nearly all! Anyway, we get along wonderfully.

Can they ever do that over there?

EASY TO GROW, HARD TO SHARE

IT is clear today that the human race ought never to suffer a serious food shortage. In the last 100 years farming has been speeded up amazingly. The modern farmer, with modern machinery, can successfully plant, cultivate and harvest twenty times as much corn as his predecessors of 100 years ago. In 6.9 man-labor hours he can do the equivalent of work formerly requiring 15.1 man-labor hours.

In spite of these facts, there are many people in the world who are hungry and who suffer from lack of certain foodstuffs. If we could make as much progress in the profitable distribution of food in the next hundred years as we have made in its production in the last, agricultural problems would be ended.

UNSTEADY TOWN

NEW YORK claims to be the most earthquake-proof city in the world. Its big buildings are of steel that cannot be shaken down. It is built on a great formation of solid granite. And so on.

All right—all right. But when it comes to financial, political and emotional quakes, it's certainly a shaky old town, always threatening to come tumbling down on the rest of the country.

Lincoln Ellsworth says he's going back to the Antarctic Continent because he can't stand crowds. The penguins will all be lined up to welcome him.

World At A Glance

—By—
Charles P. Stewart

Uncle Sam shows first class judgment in having decided upon a state department "cultural division" in preference to a governmentally packed radio program of Yankee propaganda in Latin America.

The Latin Americans are very sensitive. They are flattered by foreign interest in their various countries, but they resent foreign attempts to influence them unduly.

The United States did, for years, try to exert undue influence. We did it mightily clumsily, too—often forcibly, in fact. And it got us thoroughly disliked, if not outrightly hated. The Pan American Union's system was all right. Its policy was one of inter-American acquaintanceship, study and neighborliness. Our stupid diplomacy, however, undid the Pan American Union's good work rather faster than the Union could accomplish anything.

AS IT WAS

I went to the Argentine Republic in 1915 for a six-year stay, and I found my countrymen extremely unpopular on the southern continent. We still were unpopular when I left. How could it have been otherwise, considering the attitude of President Wilson and most of his predecessors toward these folk. If it was not actually bullying it was patronizing, to say the least. No independent nation likes to be treated in a school masterly way.

Our business also was gruff and produce stuff that Latin America however,

ROOSEVELT MUST FLAY GEORGE

WASHINGTON — The President is due for some plain-talking advice from the inner council lieutenants he summoned to meet him at Pensacola, where he debarks for his much-touted sortie into Georgia to put the axe to Senator Walter George.

The Administrationites have quietly and thoroughly surveyed the Georgia situation and this is what they are going to tell Roosevelt:

The only way George can be licked is—

1. The President must make an unequivocal declaration against the anti-New Dealer. There can be no pussy-footing or punch-pulling about the statement. It has got to be clear-cut, emphatic and dramatic.
2. The President has got to put the screws on Governor Ed Rivers to "come clean" on the fight on George.

The President's political advisers see Rivers as the key to the fight to lick Roosevelt. Rivers professes to be a great Rooseveltian and last spring promised the President to throw his weight against George. But to date the Governor hasn't lifted a finger.

Inside truth is that he really wanted to and held a conference with his lieutenants to map plans to get into the anti-George campaign. But the boys flatly said "nothing doing".

Although publicly redhot Administration adherents, actually they are aligned with the same powerful business and utility interests who are behind George. Rivers' generalissimos are no more for Lawrence Camp, the White House candidate, than they are for ex-Governor Gene Talmadge, the other aspirant in the race.

In fact, they are using Talmadge as a bugaboo to alibi their secret sabotage of Camp, claiming that if George is licked, Talmadge might skin through over both George and Camp.

White House insiders say this argument is only a stall; that the real reason for the undercover hostility of the Rivers' camp is the influence of the powerful elements who are financing George's campaign.

SNAPPY DISSENT

Justice James McReynolds, a bachelor, receives $20,000 a year salary for life. But he most emphatically does not believe in squandering the money — even for pleasure.

Vacationing recently in San Francisco, the crusty old Tennessean decided to motor up the beautiful coast to Seattle. So he approached the transportation agent of the hotel where he was staying and asked about the possibility of hiring a car and driver.

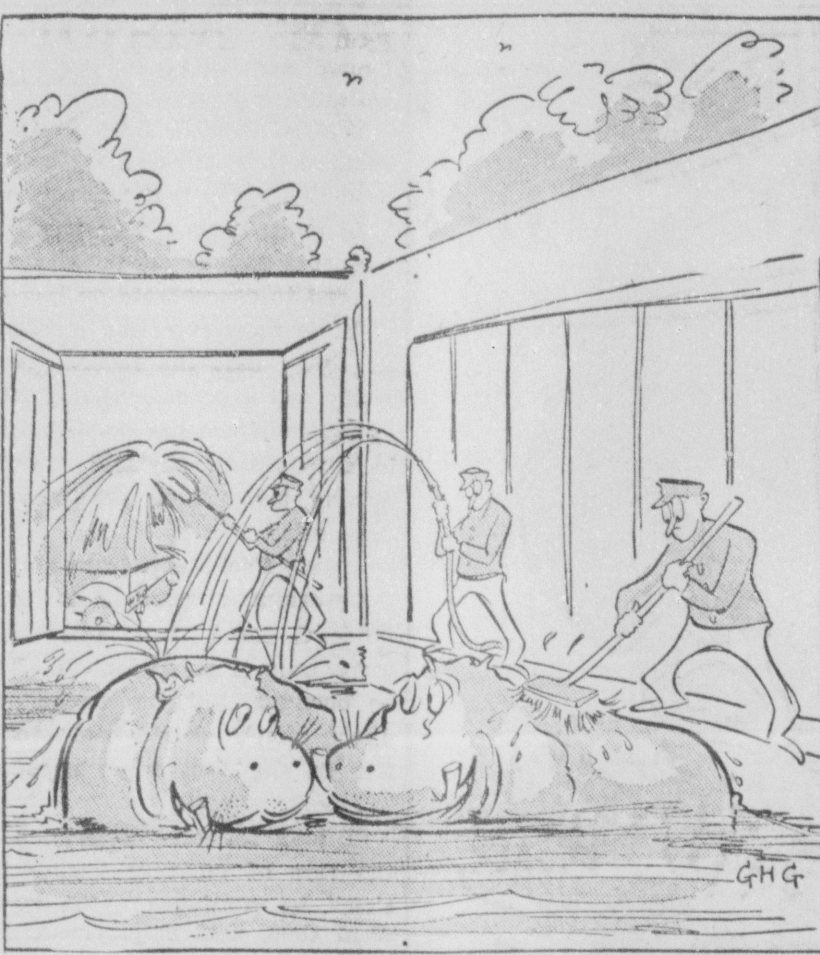

"Yes, sir, we can arrange that," said the agent.

"What are the terms?"

"The driver will cost $5 a day, the maximum mileage the car can be run a day is 100 miles and the rental of the car will be $25 a day. These charges will include both the trip to Seattle and the return of the car."

"Hmmpf," snorted McReynolds. "Young man, I want to rent a machine, I don't want to buy it."

DIET AND HEALTH

Consult Doctor for Appendicitis

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
ONE CORRESPONDENT whose letter appears on my desk this morning, can be answered very promptly. The question is, "What is the olive oil treatment of appendicitis?" The answer, "There is no olive oil treatment of appendicitis." Any more than there is a mad stone treatment of hydrophobia, or the wedding ring massage treatment of styes, or hiding the dishrag under the porch treatment of warts. I do not mean to say there are no such treatments practiced, but they belong to the Silurian epoch.

There isn't any dietetic treatment of appendicitis unless doing absolutely nothing is a form of treatment. But the "NOTHING" must be done in the most positive way.

There are only a few things that any family needs to know about appendicitis.

(1) It may occur to anybody, but is most likely to occur in young adult life—from the age of 15 to 40.

(2) Any acute abdominal pain may be appendicitis. Severe abdominal pain accompanied by diarrhea probably isn't, but no acute abdominal condition should be temporized.

Pain Often Vague at First

(3) The pain is more often a vague discomfort at first, and is more often in the region of the stomach than in the region of the appendix. When accompanied by nausea, vomiting, constipation and fever, don't ask anybody's advice, except the doctor's.

(4) If you are going to ask any advice, except the doctor's, when you have an acute abdominal upset, the safest thing to consult is a clinical thermometer. Shake it down and leave it under the tongue for two minutes. That will save you asking advice from the neighbors at least that long.

(5) Appendicitis is a very serious malady, and does not respond to amateur treatment. Nobody and no member of his family—even if this happens to include a doctor—is competent to give good advice in the face of this emergency.

(6) The doctor may decide to operate or he may decide not to operate. This depends on circumstances. Leave the judgment to him.

(7) Until the doctor arrives there are a number of important things to do. They can all be summed up by saying, "Do nothing." Do not give any food, any water or anything else by mouth.

Do not try to minimize the pain by drugs.

(8) Above all, do not give a cathartic. Do not give a cathartic in any acute digestive upset on your own advice or that of the neighbors or that of a druggist. If the upset is "indigestion" it will probably get well in the course of time without a cathartic, or if it doesn't, the cathartic can be given later. If it is anything organic the cathartic will make it worse.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Seven pamphlets by Dr. Clending can now be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin, for each, and a self-addressed envelope, to Dr. Logan Clending, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene," and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

CHAPTER 33

NOEL KNEW that doctors could not be depended on to keep an engagement right to the minute. She had waited an hour for Julian, but she intended to wait a while longer. Something had delayed him, but she still believed he would be here.

Now and then Noel saw Laurie cast an anxious eye at her. She managed to smile back confidently. But she wasn't feeling so confident after all, and she didn't intend to wait more than a few minutes longer.

She ordered a cup of coffee to pass the time. It was very hot, so she let it cool. But it hurt her throat when she tried to swallow it, and she finally pushed it away.

Noel couldn't help asking herself two questions: Wasn't Julian coming at all? And if not, didn't he have the decency to let her know?

At last she couldn't stand it any longer. She rose and went up to the register, laying a nickel down with her check.

"Listen, Noel," Laurie said in a low voice, "wait just a little while longer. Something's happened, but he'll be here. I'm sure of it."

Suddenly they both saw Ruth Chester walking across the street. She came into the cafe, looked around, then saw Noel at the register. At once she walked over to her.

"Doctor Paige asked me to tell you that he was very sorry but it was impossible for him to keep his engagement."

Noel looked at her coolly. "Did he give any reason?"

Ruth Chester's dark brows were slightly elevated. "No, he didn't. He merely said to tell you he was sorry."

"Thank you very much, Miss Chester," Noel said then.

"Don't mention it," Ruth Chester returned coolly as she turned and went out, crossing the street again to the Medical Arts.

"She might have added that the pleasure was all hers," Laurie scoffed. "I know good and well she never gave anybody a message she enjoyed more."

Noel merely gave a little shrug. "Guess I might as well be on my way."

"Listen, Noel," Laurie said earnestly, "I'll bet you anything that Doctor Paige asked her to let you know fully an hour and a half ago. He even may have asked her to phone you before you left the house."

"He may have," Noel answered. It was entirely possible that Ruth Chester had taken a malicious delight in letting her sit here and wait for Julian so long.

"She's a darn little cat, if you're asking me," Laurie said indignantly.

"I'm afraid she is, darling," Noel said wearily.

She left the cafe and walked listlessly up Madison toward Main. The sun had gone behind a cloud, which somehow gave the world a much grayer look than it had had before. Very faintly, Noel thought.

She kept walking on, not knowing where she would go, or what she would do.

The next thing she knew, she and Chris almost walked into each other. Chris drew back, saying "Sorry." Then he saw it was Noel, and gave a low whistle. "Why, Miss Doran, fancy meeting you here!"

He added, "I suppose you are on your way to your luncheon date?"

"I—Noel hesitated. A flush came into her face. "As a matter of fact," she went on, "my—er—date didn't materialize."

"Good—then you can go with me," Chris exclaimed, taking her arm. "That is, we can have lunch together. Afterwards I've got an appointment with Carey. I say, this is luck—meeting you like this."

Noel was thinking. She and Chris would go to some nice place, and Chris would order a lovely lunch. And there'd probably be music. And while she wouldn't be able to eat very much, she'd probably lose this cold, lonely feeling which seemed to be clamped like a vice around her heart.

So Chris took her to another arty little place, very bohemian and informal, where he said a lot of writers and artistic people went. There was music. And Noel's heart began lifting a little at a time until she almost was able to laugh with real spontaneity.

Chris said, "You're always happy with me, aren't you?"

Noel smiled. "I like being with you. I think you're good for my soul." But when she said that, Noel felt that she had used the wrong word. Chris was good for her ego, her poor vanity, which was always suffering a little because of Julian's indifference.

"Well then, listen," Chris was saying, "I'm not going to take no for an answer. I'm willing to wait, as I told you. But we couldn't be so happy together if we didn't have a lot in common. Some day you'll love me, Noel. You'll just have to."

Noel felt tears welling up. Chris was such a dear. But she couldn't give him any false encouragement, so she said, her voice a little choked, "Chris, you deserve the best. I—couldn't give it you."

He grew a little pale, but his eyes were still warm and tender. "Anyway I'm still going to wait. And I'm not going to let you say you won't go to Hollywood. But I know I'll be frightfully jealous of all the men out there who will want to make love to you."

"I wouldn't want them to," Noel answered, and added, "most probably they wouldn't anyway."

"Listen, sweetheart," Chris said earnestly, "I know Hollywood. You'll be a sensation." He stopped, then added with a smile, "That's why I'm trying to get in my claim first."

When they finished lunch and Chris had to go, he said that Bretton would have his decision ready by late afternoon. "And it's going to be you. I'm simply positive of that."

Noel looked at him earnestly. "Chris, promise me you won't be too disappointed if—I decide I can't go."

"I can't do that," Chris said huskily.

Noel looked down at her hands. She still hadn't the faintest idea whether she would accept the Hollywood offer or not, that is, if Carey Bretton decided she was the one.

"You're going," Chris said then, giving her a little emphasizing tap on the arm. Then he was gone.

Noel walked over to Front Street park, not having anything else to do, and sat down on a bench, gazing out over the river and at Mud Island, which several years ago had risen out of the water in a single night. It was grown up now with small reed-like trees. People all over town made jokes about Mud Island. Someone was always saying he was going over there and homestead, for nobody knew to whom the island belonged. Also it might at any minute disappear into the river as suddenly as it had appeared over the water's edge.

After about an hour, Noel decided she might as well go on home. Laurie would be there soon, if she was not there by now. They might take in a movie or something.

Afterwards, Noel was very, very glad she had decided to go home. For Laurie was there with news. Julian had come to the De Luxe at 2 o'clock, and had been waiting there since. Once he came up to the register and asked Laurie if she thought Noel was going to keep her engagement. She told him that Noel had been there and waited until 11:30. Then Julian said he had had an emergency but he had asked Miss Chester to come over at once and tell Noel that he would join her at 2, if she wouldn't mind coming back.

So Ruth Chester had lied again! In another minute Noel was dusting her face with powder, straightening her hair, all with Laurie's eager help, and on her way to the De Luxe, hoping against hope that Julian was still there.

Two Colors, Two Fabrics for Fall

It isn't often that the dark dress is cited as an early autumn fashion. Usually we turn from the light shades of Summer to deeper tones for our first Fall things. But this year the shops say that dark frocks are registering everywhere. And when colors are asked for, the demand is for all tones of purple, ranging from lilac to deep violet.

A poll of radio favorites discloses that the stars are equally keen on black and purple. Margaret Speaks, the famous soprano, posed specially for this page in her newest autumn frock. CAIN'S MARKET RALLIES TO WIN 4 TO 3 CONTEST

Bronzeville Jolliers Drop

Verdict After Taking Early Lead

Nipper Rowe's triple with Barney Reese on third base and a double play that came about when Don Nance grabbed a line drive bid for a hit and pegged to first base to get another runner won a ball game for the Cain food market of South Bloomfield, Monday evening, from the unfortunate Bronzeville Jolliers. The score was 4-3, the Jolliers leading until the sixth when the Cains put on a two-run rally.

The Jolliers, who have lost more leads in the last couple of innings than any other team in the loop, scored one run in each of the first three frames, but after that they were stopped cold. The Cains tallied in the second frame and once more in the fifth to pull within a run of a deadlock. When the sixth started D. Nance and A. Roof were easy outs. C. Wilson singled and Barney Reese blasted a triple. Rowe followed suit and two runs were across.

In the Jollier half of the seventh L. Hill singled to start the session. D. Johnson, pinchhitting, forced him at second. Then Bob Jones went in to swing for H. Johnson. Jones smacked a line drive toward left-center, but Don Nance snaggled the ball and with the same motion whipped it to first base to pick off Johnson and end the game.

The Jolliers outthrew the Cains but committed two errors against one. The Glitt market meets the Circleville Oils in tonight's contest.

Second Place Contests On In Major Leagues

CHICAGO, Aug. 9.—(UP)—With excitement in the pennant races dwindling because of the increasingly apparent superiority of the Pittsburgh Pirates and New York Yankees, chief major league interest today centered on the battles for second place in both circuits.

The battle in the National league is a three way affair between the Giants, Cubs and Reds. Six and a half games behind the Pirates, New York holds a game and a half edge over the Cubs and Reds who are deadlocked for third place. Cleveland, trailing the Yankees by 5 1/2 games, has only a game and a half advantage over the Boston Red Sox.

After a complete day of idleness all major league clubs resume play today. The hottest action was expected at Cincinnati, where the Reds and Cubs come to grips in a battle for third place.

The next six days should settle the Cubs' pennant chances definitely inasmuch as they move into Pittsburgh for a three game series with the league leaders after they wind up their three game series in Cincinnati. The Cubs' pitching staff is pretty well shot now with Clay Bryant, Dizzy Dean and Tex Carleton all more or less on the sick and ailing list. Bryant is nursing an injured left hand. Dean is being handled with kid gloves and Carleton has shown no signs of recovering from an arm ailment.

Giants, Reds Fall
The Giants and Reds are in the same boat as far as pitching goes. Carl Hubbell has gone sour. Cliff Melton has faded from the great form of his freshman year. Bill Terry hasn't a single reliable pitcher. Cincinnati's pitchers have been blowing leads right and left. The Reds couldn't find a pitcher to hold a seven run lead in one of Sunday's games against Brooklyn.

Cleveland's big drop may be charged to a collapse of their pitchers. Bob Feller, Johnny Allen and Mel Harder all lost their form at the same time.

Brooklyn, the most active major league club in the player marts, continues the search for talent in the hope of climbing out of sixth place. The Dodgers latest acquisition is Wayne LaMaster, Phillies' southpaw. He has won four games and lost seven this season. Last year he won 15 and lost 19.

It's really surprisin' how quick people are to help you when you come right out and tell 'em your troubles. My Uncle Mink, the contractor, would do anything in the world for a person when he understood his problem. I remember the time he was buildin' a house for young Jess Wilson. Jess came to him and says "Can you tell me when my house is going to be finished?" Mink? You see, I've arranged to be married as soon as the house is complete." And Uncle Mink says "Now, don't worry, son, you can depend on me and all my men. We'll string this job out just as long as we can!"

GUNMEN ESCAPE AFTER SHOOTING STATE OFFICER

MINEOLA, Mo., Aug. 9.—(UP)—The two bandits who shot a highway patrolman yesterday when he stopped them for routine questioning, were believed today to have escaped into Iowa.

Highways and side roads leading over the northern Missouri boundary line were patrolled but Col. Marvin Casteel, head of the state patrol, said he believed the men got over the line early today. The concentration in this area of state patrolmen who blockaded a 25 mile square between here and the Mississippi river was ended and the men returned to their regular posts.

Sergeant Frank Hogan was not wounded seriously when he stopped the bandit car when he noticed it carried Indiana license plates. Possibility that one of the men was wounded by Hogan was considered when Dr. E. J. T. Anderson, Montgomery city, reported that he had received a fake telephone call to treat Mrs. George White of Mineola. Troopers followed him to the White home but the bandit car was not seen and the Whites said they had not placed the call or seen the men.

AT THE CLIFTONA

The fact that parole laws of many states forbid marriages for paroled persons motivates the new Sylvia Sidney and George Raft picture "You and Me," which opens Tuesday night at the Cliftona Theatre.

The two stars, last seen together in "Pick Up," play the roles of young ex-convicts, working for a philanthropic department store owner whose hobby is to give men and women a chance to go straight. Raft, who has served his parole, marries Miss Sidney after making a complete confession to her about his shady past. Miss Sidney, still on parole, conceals her past from him because she knows that by probation regulations, she may not marry. And also, she is aware of the fact that Raft is desperately trying to steer clear of anything that will remind him of his gangster days. When Raft learns of his past he becomes embittered, gives up his struggle to go straight, returns to the "mob" and is saved from another criminal career only by the daring action of Miss Sidney, who risks another stretch in the "Big House" to save him.

SUIT CHARGES $702 DUE FROM FORMER SHERIFF

Mrs. Laura Porter Kelley, Pittsburgh, filed suit in Common Pleas court Monday against Frank Davis, S. Court street, ex-sheriff, and the Ohio Casualty Insurance Co., Hamilton, seeking $702.91 with interest from Aug. 8, 1929, alleged due from crops on land in Perry township.

The petition says that in 1926 Mrs. Porter owned 89.41 acres of land in Perry township, and her sisters, Emma and Artie Porter were owners of 98.37 acres and 102.96 acres, respectively. The lands, the action explains, were farmed as a whole, the profits divided equally.

On May 24, 1926, the suits says, M. S. Bartholomew, New Holland, obtained a judgment against Emma and Artie Porter for $3,945.08 and an execution was issued. It explains that the former sheriff collected funds from crops on the land to pay the judgment. On March 7, 1929 the plaintiff and her husband filed their claim as to their rights-of-property. It is alleged the sheriff did not pay Mrs. Kelley her interest in the crops although she was not a party to the suit.
